Romania is a civil law jurisdiction and the core employment regulation is the Labour Code. Besides the Labour Code, specific tailored legal enactments regulate other employment-related aspects, such as employment safety and health, insurance for work accidents and professional diseases and social dialogue. Collective bargaining agreements also provide binding rules and obligations to be complied with by the employers. Finally, considering Romania's accession to the European Union, which took place on 1 January 2007, EU legislation and ECJ decisions are also relevant. The main responsible body for the application of the employment legislation is the Ministry of Labour, Family and Social Protection and its subordinated entities. Aside from the above, there are also other agencies responsible for the application of certain elements of employment law, such as the General Inspectorate for Immigration, which is responsible for integration of foreign citizens in the labour sector. To read the entire article, please download the .pdf attached.
